DETAILED ACTION

This Office action is in response to the election submitted on July 12, 2004.

Drawings

The drawings filed August 14, 2003, are acceptable.

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of the invention of Group II, claims 1-31, in the reply filed on July 12, 2004 is acknowledged.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-12, 14, and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a, e) as being clearly anticipated by Yamazaki, U.S. Patent 6,617,647.

Yamazaki discloses a semiconductor field effect device which has an SOI structure which comprises a host structure 701 comprising a channel region and an engineered array 707 of at least one impurity at the channel region of the host structure such that component atoms of the engineered array 707 are substantially fixed by substantially controlled placement in order to provide substantial control of carrier flow, see figures 7A-7E and figures 12A-12C.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 13 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamazaki in view of Oda et al., U.S. Patent 6,380,036.

Yamazaki is applied as above. Yamazaki lacks anticipation only of the component atoms comprising p-type and n-type dopants. Oda et al. disclose a field effect transistor comprising a channel having both n-type and p-type impurities, see Fig. 13 and col. 10, ll.50-62. Oda teaches that a buried channel prevents punch through at deep positions in the host structure, thus improving punch-through voltage. In light of the teachings of Oda, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art that the channel region of the transistor of Yamazaki could be formed using both n-and p-type dopants.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The additionally cited references disclose field effect transistors having doped channel regions.
